Pudding Recipe

- Puree -

500g dates w/o the pit

825ml water

9g sodium bicarbonate

- rest of the batter-

Vanilla (or other spices)

260 g soft butter + more to grease the pan

180g Sugar

10 g Salt

4 large eggs

38g Baking powder

270g Flour

- syrup -

225 g brown sugar

100 g Heavy whipping cream

25 g whisky

Boil the dates in water for 1 min. Add the sodium bicarbonate (it will foam) and puree. Let it cool.

Cream the butter with the sugar and add the room temperature eggs one at a time while whisking.

Add the cool down date puree and mix. Add the flour. Pour into a grease tin pan and bake at 175° for 45 minutes or until done.

After the pudding cools a little make a caramel with the brown sugar, cream and whisky and pour it over. Let it absorb it and coll completely.

Variation (the one you tried last summer):

Dried apricots instead of dates. Half apricot jam half liquid to soak (but not as much as the caramel). Cover with thin tempered white chocolate.

Carrot and Ginger Salad

Ingredients:

- Carrots (5 Parts)
- Ginger (1 Part)
- Fresh coriander (a reasonable sized bouquet)
- A chili pepper
- Almond shavings
- Olive oil
- Salt

This is a very simple, but delicious salad I like to make. It's perfect for BBQ's or Pick-nicks, but also great as a side dish. First, one grates the carrots (thin and long, a food processor does wonders, but by hand is also fine) and the ginger, both approximately the same size (although you can do a little less ginger and grate it finer, if you prefer less spicy). Then cut the coriander coarsely and add it to the ginger and carrots. Cut the pepper (without the seeds) finely and put it in the salad. Mix everything together with quite a bit of good olive oil and a reasonable amount of salt. Finally, take enough almond shavings to top of your salad. Preferably you have it served in a shallow bowl or on a plate, to best distribute the almonds) and roast them in a pan (preferably without oil). They need to be nicely brown and crispy, but be careful not to burn them. Distribute them over the salad and serve!

CARBONARA

Ingredients (for 1 serve)

- * guanciale (or pancetta as a replacement),
- * one or two egg yolks,
- * three handfuls of pecorino romano,
- * one handful of parmigiano reggiano,
- * 100 gr of spaghetti (thick spaghetti),
- * black pepper.

Method

- * Cut any hard skin off the guanciale, then chop it.
- * Put the egg yolks in a bowl, grate in the pecorino and the parmigiano, and season with freshly ground black pepper. Then mix with a fork until the consistency of the mixture becomes homogeneous.
- * Start cooking the spaghetti in pot with boiling salted water.
- * Cook the guanciale in a large frying pan (without adding any oil) until the fat is melted and the meat has become crunchy. Then leave the melted fat in the pan over the heat, remove the crunchy meat and cut it very finely.
- * Two or three minutes before the spaghetti become "al dente", first put one or two big spoons of cooking water into the frying pan containing the melted guanciale fat, and then transfer the spaghetti from the pot to the pan.
- * Complete the cooking of the spaghetti in the pan until "al dente" (keep stirring it and add more cooking water only if necessary).
- * Once the spaghetti are "al dente", turn off the heat, pour into the pan the mixture of egg and cheese, and toss well (adding some cooking water if necessary) until the mixture is completely dissolved into a cream.
- * Add the crunchy guanciale meat and an extra twist of black pepper.

ingredients

(app. 4 pers.)

- 5 sheets of puff pastry (frozen or unfrozen)
- 300g pumpkin
- $\frac{1}{2}$ red cabbage
- 75g white cheese (e.g. feta cheese)
- 1 onion
- 2 gloves of garlic
- 2 eggs
- 75 ml cream
- balsamic vinegar
- origano
- pepper
- olive oil.

instructions

Preheat the oven at 180°C. (Defrost the puff pastry).

Peel and cut the pumpkin in grove pieces. Boil the pumpkin for 5 minutes. Afterwards drain and cool the pumpkin and cut in smaller pieces.

Cut the red cabbage in small strips. Peel and shred the onion and clean the garlic. Heat oil in a frying pan or wok and fry the onion. Squeeze the garlic above the pan and add the red cabbage. Stir-fry this for 4 minutes.

Add a dash of balsamic vinegar to the red cabbage and a little bit of water, turn down the heat and stove for another 10 minutes.

Lined the cake tin with the puff pastry, and use a fork to puncture small holes in the bottom. Scoop in the red cabbage (try to leave most moisture in the wok, otherwise the quiche will be too wet.)

Devide the pumpkin over the red cabbage, and crumble the white cheese over the vegetables.

Mix the eggs, cream, origano and pepper and pour the mixture over the quiche.

Heat 20-25 minutes in the oven.

Enjoy!

PALLOTTE CACCIO E UOVO

(Italian translation: "PALLOTTE CACCIO E UOVO", i.e. "CHEESE AND EGG LITTLE BALL")

Background: it is a "poor recipe" from the Abruzzese Region in central Italy, invented in the past by people that wanted to eat meatballs without having the possibility to afford meat. It has been recently "rediscovered" and it is now one of the characteristic regional specialty.

Ingredients for about 20 balls:

- Breadcrumbs (you can do them yourself from stale bread) $\sim 150\text{ g}$
- Pecorino Romano and Parmigiano Reggiano, both grated $\sim 200\text{ g}$ in total (proportions at your will)
- Eggs (both yolk and albumen) ~ 4
- Tomato sauce ("passata") $\geq 500\text{ ml}$
- ~~Parsley~~ Parsley a bit

Preparation: • mix ^{for some minutes} breadcrumbs, cheese and eggs with your hand, together with pieces of parsley
• prepare ~~small meatballs~~ close and banded balls

Use big pots and pans

- fry them in olive oil until they are "golden"
- upset, prepare the standard tomato sauce; when it is ready, immerse the balls and cook everything for 15 minutes at low fire

Serving

- they can be very hot, leave them cooling down a bit
- they are ^{either a} single main course or an appetizer; do not serve them together with pasta, rice, etc.
- They can be kept in a pot and conserved for the next day

Extra

- put a bit of ^{black} pepper in the mixture at the beginning, if you like it, as well as garlic
- if the mixture seems too liquid, add more cheese/breadcrumbs, if it seems too solid, add one extra egg. The balls in the pan should not fall apart
- you can google the name and find pictures of the intermediate steps, as well as nice videos (the first Youtube result has a wonderful song)
- It's easier than it seems (I'm just very pedantic in writing, as you ~~know~~ know).

Joel

Porole Rojo (Big Recipe, can scale down)

- 120g Dried Guajillo peppers
- Salt to taste
- 3 lbs (1.36 Kg) Pork Shoulder or shank
- 8 cloves of garlic (4 chopped, 4 whole)
- 3 Bay leaves
- 1 tsp ground cumin
- 2 Tbsp dried mexican oregano

Optional Garnishes:

- lime
- cilantro
- avocado
- tostadas
- radishes
- cabbage
- onion

Boil 4.5 liters of water in ~ 9-10 liter pot.
While boiling toast guajillo peppers on dry pan before adding them to 700 ml of hot water to steep.

Chop the pork into rough chunks and salt them. Fry in lard or any other oil. Brown on all sides and then add garlic and cook until fragrant (not too long).

Put the pork into the boiling water along with the remaining spices. Add salt to taste. Blend the peppers with half of the soaking liquid and add to soup through a strainer. Let the soup boil until very tender. (2 hrs depending on meat).

While the soup is boiling, prepare any sides/garnishes. Commonly served with: cabbage, radish, lime, cilantro, avocado, onion, tostadas/tortilla chips.

Russian-style crepes: БЛИНЫ (BLINY)

- You will need:
- 1) 3 eggs
 - 2) 1 tablespoon of sugar
 - 3) 500 ml of milk
 - 4) 280 gr of flour ($\approx$ 2.25 cups)
 - 5) a pinch of salt
 - 6) 1-3 tablespoons of oil

- 1) Beat the eggs, sugar, and salt in a bowl until blended.
 - 2) Add 200 ml of milk, mix.
 - 3) Add the flour. Mix properly, until the mix is homogeneous, with no "lumps".
 - 4) Add the rest of the milk and mix.
 - 5) Add the oil (I usually add 1 tablespoon, but you can add up to 3).
 - 6) Let the "dough" (the liquid dough 😊) rest for 20 minutes.

The cooking 😊:

- 1) Preheat the pan
- 2) Grease the pan with some oil (a little bit, not too much) {a little bit, just enough for 1 pancake 😊}
- 3) Use a ladle to pour the dough into the pan.
- 4) Wait until the edges are red-brown to flip the pancake.

- 5) Cook the other side of the pancake.
- 6) When the first one is done, repeat steps 2) - 5)
(after removing the first pancake, of course 😊)

And remember: don't be discouraged if the first couple of pancakes don't turn out well. There is a saying in Russian: "The first 'blin' (= pancake) is always a mess!" 😊

Luca

Panissa Veronese

- Ingredients:
- beans ~ 200 gr (possibly dried beans)
 - pork fat ~ 30 gr
 - 2 celery sticks (chopped)
 - onion : 1 (chopped)
 - 2 carrots (chopped)
 - ~~2 onions~~ - salt

BROTH

- rice ~ 280 gr (anything suitable for a risotto)
- pork fat ~ 40 gr
- onion ~ 70 gr (chopped)
- red wine (a glass or so)
- Smoked Salami ~ 120 gr (the ~~one~~ "cylindrical" thing)
- tomato sauce ~ ~~1/2~~ 1 or 2 spoons
- grated parmesan cheese (as much as you feel like)
- ~~pepper~~ black pepper
- laurel (1 leaf, if you find it)
- olive oil (as much as needed)

- How to: ① If you use dried beans, leave them in cold water overnight.

Take a saucepan, fill it with water and ~~the~~ bring to the boil all the ingredients for the broth except beans.

Then add the beans, reduce the heat and cook for ~ 1h, until they are "al dente".

Strain the beans but ^{another} leave the broth in a pan over ^{very} low heat.

- ② Heat some olive oil in a pan, add the ~~weight~~ of onion ~~and the carrots~~ and cook until soft (not too colored!!). Then add the pork fat and let it melt.

Chop finely the salami and add it to the pan, cook for a few minutes.

Then add the rice and some pepper. ~~After~~ After 2/3 minutes (the rice has to be cooked) at medium heat, add the tomato sauce and after other 2 minutes add the red wine. Let evaporate.

③ Add the reserved broth gradually: cover the rice with it, let ~~it~~ evaporate, add again (as with the usual risotto!). keep moving the rice with a spoon.

After 40 minutes, beat up the beans. Take a few of them and make a smooth cream smushing them. Add the cream and the whole beans to the rice.

keep adding broth until the rice is al dente. (often 15 min roughly)

Be aware there is a balance solid/liquid: the risotto has to be creamy.

④ Remove the pan from the heat, leave to rest a couple of minutes and then add the cheese and the pepper ~~of~~ ~~the pepper~~

Curry de Lentejas

(para 4 o 5)

Ingredientes:

1 Cebolla grande cortada a dados pequeños
2-4 Cucharadas de kurkuma
2 Cucharadas de Garam Masala
2 Cucharadas de comino
1 Cucharada nuez moscada (opcional)
1 jalapeño cortado
2 Dientes de ajo cortados finamente o rallados
1 Pulgada de jengibre fresco cortado
2 Zanahorias medianas cortadas a dados
1 Lata de tomates pelados (400g)
1 Lima exprimida
250ml Leche de coco
2 Vasos de lentejas Beluga (u otro tipo de lentejas)
400g de hojas de espinacas frescas y lavadas
2 Vasos arroz Jasmin
150g Queso feta (opcional)

Elaboración

1. Pon aceite en una sartén honda (preferiblemente) o en una cazuela. Una vez caliente, tira la cebolla cortada y añade las especias, jalapeño, sal y pimienta. Cuando la cebolla empiece a estar dorada, tira el ajo, el jengibre y las zanahorias. Cuando se empiece a enganchar ligeramente la sartén, tira los tomates pelados y añade también el mismo volumen en agua. Una vez rompes los tomates puedes tirar el zumo de lima y bajar el fuego; dejándolo por unos 10-15 minutos, revolviendo frecuentemente.
2. Una vez pasados los 10-15 minutos, tira la leche de coco y el mismo volumen en agua. Revuele la sartén y añade las lentejas. A fuego lento las dejas hasta cocidas, revolviendo frecuentemente y hasta que la mayoría de líquido se haya evaporado. Durante la cocción de las lentejas, puedes añadir más Kurkuma y/o Garam Masala (yo soy bastante generoso con la Kurkuma).
3. Cuando las lentejas estén cocidas, simplemente añade las hojas de espinacas hasta que queden reducidas (sin fragmentarse!). En este punto, simplemente puedes ya servir el curry de lentejas en un plato, con el arroz Jasmin que habrás cocinado con suficiente agua y -al gusto- se puede también añadir queso feta por encima.

Seadas with honey

Seadas are a typical Sardinian dessert, native to the island. The name comes from the Sardinian word "sen", which indicates the shining surface of the honey.

Ingredients for 12 seadas

FOR THE DOUGH:

- 500g whole wheat flour
- 70g lard
- a medium egg
- 250 ml of tepid water

FOR THE FILLING:

- 500g fresh sheep cheese (alternatively, a ~~savory~~ non-seasoned cheese)
- 70ml of water
- grated lemon skin

FOR THE COVER:

- strawberry tree honey (alternatively, any other honey, or sugar)

Preparation

- Let's start from the dough: put the flour in a bowl, add the egg, pour the tepid water slowly, and knead with your hands. Add the salt slowly, and continue to knead.
- When the dough is compact, spread a little amount of flour on a chopping board, put the dough there, and continue to knead until you obtain a smooth and elastic mass. Cover it with plastic wrap, and let it rest for 30 minutes.
- In the meantime, let's pass to the cheese filling: grate the skin of a lemon, and put it aside. Grate the cheese with a grater with big holes, and put it in a pot. Add the water, and melt the cheese at a medium temperature, mixing continuously for 8-10 minutes.
- When the cheese is melted, add the lemon ~~cheese~~^{skin} and mix. Then pour it on a chopping board, spread, and let it rest until it is more solid. Then, with a round dough cutter with diam. 9 cm, cut 12 discs.

- Let's go back to the dough: divide it into two equal parts. Then, roll it out with a rolling pin until you get two 3mm thick layers of dough. Place now the discs over the first layer, and cover them with the second layer.
- Press gently around the cheese discs, in order to eliminate air bubbles and join the two layers together. Finally, with a round dough cutter, of diameter 10.5 cm, cut out the seadas.
- Now you can fry the seadas: warm up some seed oil in a pan, and then dip one seada at a time for a couple minutes. After that, place the seada on some blotting paper, in order to eliminate some of the oil. After that, cover with honey or sugar, and serve while the seada is still hot.

Have fun! ☺

Pui cu smântână Chicken with sour cream

- 250 ml water
- 800 g chicken meat
- 2 onions
- 2-3 garlic cloves
- 2+ spoonfuls of oil
- 30 g butter
- salt, black pepper, dill

for the sour cream sauce:

- 400 g sour cream (20% fat at least)
- 1 spoonful wheat flour
- salt
- 1 egg

Prepare the meat:

- chop the meat ($\approx 3\text{cm}^3$), the onions and garlic (small pieces)
- add the salt and the black pepper on the meat
- fry the meat in a very well heated pan (with oil), don't cover the pan; the meat needs to become roasted, so if the pan is not large enough, add first just one part of the meat - cook it, take it out - then continue similarly; the
- when the meat is well roasted, add the onion, the garlic and the butter; you only need to slightly roast the onion (2 min);
- add 250 ml water and leave it 10 min to boil slowly.

Prepare the sauce:

- dissolve one spoonful of flour with hot water from the pan;
- mix one egg with the sour cream in a larger bowl and add the wheat flour dissolved;
- little by little add spoonfuls of hot water from the pan into the bowl and mix. Don't add too much hot water all of a sudden, otherwise the egg and sour cream will change consistency (into solid pieces)
- add the hot sauce back into the pan together with the meat;
- add some dill, some salt;

Ready! Enjoy!

Preparation

Add olive oil to a pot and start cooking the onion with the garlic cloves, and cumin. Then add the turmeric, carrots, zucchini and potatoes.

guacamole

Guacamole

Origin: The name comes from the nahuatl (language of Central Mexico, including the Aztecs) word "Ahuacamolli" meaning avocado sauce. From "ahuacatl" ($\rightarrow$ aguacate $\rightarrow$ avocado) + "molli" (sauce). Historical references from the 16th century indicate that guacamole was prepared with avocados, chile, lemon and salt. Later, during the colonial times, other ingredients were added such as onions, cilantro, tomatoes, and olive oil.

This is my personal guacamole recipe inspired by guacamoles that I've tried in Yucatan, Mexico City, and my family's influence.

Ingredients (serves 4)

- 4 ripe avocados (rule of thumb: 1 avocado per person) (large)
- $\frac{1}{2}$ large white onion (or 1 small yellow onion), chopped
- Bunch of Cilantro, chopped
- Olive oil, (2-3 spoons)
- $\frac{1}{2}$ lime (juice)
- Sea salt
- Pepper
- Chili

Preparation:

All you need is mixing ^{the} avocados with the onions, cilantro, and chili. Then add olive oil, salt, and just a bit of pepper. Keep tasting while mixing the ingredients. I would suggest adding the ingredients little by little. The idea is that avocados get enhanced but not overcome by the other vegetables. Try to leave a few bigger avocado chunks here and there. Just before serving add the lime juice (if you add it too early then it becomes too acid).

Save a cilantro leaf and an avocado stone to present the dish.

NOTE! No garlic, no cream, no yoghurt

Tomatoes not recommended because it makes the guacamole "watery", but one can add them at the end for decoration (don't mix them)

Reinier

Ingredients:

- 1 onion
- 3-4 spring onions
- Cashew nuts (roasted not salted)
- ~200g Chicken
- tempura
- 3 tbs Oyster sauce
- 2 tbs light soya sauce
- 4 tbs dark/sweet soya sauce
- 1 bell pepper
- 1 garlic
- 2 tbs sugar
- 1 tbs sesame oil

Instructions:

Cut the chicken to pieces and mix it with the tempura until it is saturated.

Fry the chicken in some oil until it is lightly colored on the outside.

Fry the vegetables and the garlic (add spring onion last).

Mix the sauces with two table spoons of sugar. If the vegetables are almost done, then you can add the sauce, chicken, cashew nuts and sesame oil. Add some water (~100 ml) and let it boil for some minutes.

Serve with some steamed rice or noodles.
